My mom died from cancer Dec 11, 95 Dec 16 my best friend , who was more like a dad to me overdosed on the fetal patches he was stealing , became addicted to and I threw them all away , so I thought. 2 years later after , the day after I was forced to sell my mom's home, my girlfriend left me for my childhood friend . I wonder why every fucking day, I have no kids, no fucking job, my edd just ran out. But I AM STILL HERE, quilters are not winners , you can't quit. Has Donald , no he fights, KEEP THE FAITH.. m..... Look I'm honest, I'm not lying , you need to hear my story , if want want to get proof, I ll dox myself if it will help . my name's Mike Keep the faith brother, it will pass

Hey brother, you've got A fuckton of real friends.

I mean in just 60 minutes hundreds of people viewed your post and 80 upvoted it and 20 people took time to comment.

You are loved bro.

I know that digital engagement doesn't feel as real as physical but I want you to think about this:

Look at all of our rallies, the faces of all of the people they are together for a single cause shouting the same name.

Every person there welcomes you with open arms.

Even if you can't be in DC with us on the 6th see if you can find a local Trump group and get some people on the street corners Wednesday.

How beautiful would it be if not only in DC, Pedes rose up Nationwide in every state protesting at the same time from their own street corners all connected by streams on the web.

We can't do it without you brother, come join us.

Suicide of white men is one of the weapons of the white genocide.

They destroy the identity and feelings of self worth of young white men driving them to drugs and suicide. For a human being having an identity is necessary.

My ex wife thought she was going to take me to the cleaners like this. Unfortunately for her, we live in Texas, and only property you acquire while married is split equally. Her jaw hit the fucking floor, when her own lawyer explained this to her.

Haha!

Yes in most countries the personal property that you had before marriage doesn't get split.

However, in general I think you're obligated to maintain her, potentially for life, if she doesn't have enough to live on her own.

I hope you are not on the hook for some alimony

Same here in GA. I had put off marriage because I am never 100% sure of relationships. And I own everything I have outright, paid in full. Land, house, vehicles, RV etc. etc.. and I didn't want to lose it all. My based mom told me dun worry, she can't take anything because I acquired everything before marriage. And GA says she ain't got shit coming.

My little brother and his just married wife both OD'd on fentanyl in 2018 within a few months of each other. In 2016 they had suddenly started dressing like commies and espousing communist ideas and talking points. Both were super anti-Trump. My wife and I couldn't figure out why they were acting so strangely. Found out they had been doing heroin for about 2 years, had abandoned all their real friends and were hanging out exclusively with Antifa commie freaks. This is personal for me. I will have my revenge.

Jordan Peterson said something like “put that (suicide) aside for today” essentially, keep procrastinating when it comes to ending your life. The first time I've heard him give the green light to procrastinate!

Also, give God another chance to show you what he has planned for you. I get depressed when I focus on other people, if they are doing better than me or worse and both make me miserable. Only thing we can control is ourselves and many have found they can't even do that without help from a higher power. We all will be disappointed if we put all our hope and faith on other humans, we have to trust something bigger. And don't you want to see what's going to happen in 2021? This bizarre reality is like a Tommy Wiseau movie come to life, let's see how it ends together, my friend! Wishing you the best and we are all suffering through this together!

=Suicide is a permanent solution to an oftentimes temporary problem. Persevere and push through, but don't give up on yourself. I highly suggest going and taking part in services at a Church nearby you if you don't already, it can get you involved in your community and you'll meet good wholesome people that you can talk to and that might be able to help you out with your troubles.

This is one of the reasons I think a lot of the “mask up and wear a second bandolier with burner phones” tactical advice for the 6th, while totally well-meaning and genuinely useful, may not be universally applicable. Certainly, if you expect to get involved in enforcement activities, yes, take precautions. And thank you for pushing an envelope that needs to be pushed... bigly.

But this is also going to be the world's biggest and greatest convention of frens. If you're not planning to operate on the edge (or you are and truly just don't GAF), bring your phone or address book, make new friends, know that many others need new friends, a new friend, and understand that the act of friendship can be genuinely as powerful and meaningful for one person as saving a country is for all us collectively. (also know that if you are being disingenuous or deceptive, you're doing so with decent people who are almost all totally capable of putting you in the f'ing ground).

Truth and love, they are inseparable goods.

And OP, bless you and your strength that surpasses that of nearly all you will ever meet. I pray you will meet good people on Wednesday who will reinforce that strength in you, and see it as an example for their own selves. I cannot express enough sorrow for your tragedies, and I pray the rest of your long walk to come on this earth is easier. But regardless of what you find on Wednesday, I say this in all honesty, and without a hint of triteness - there is no better friend, no better champion, no more sincere knower of suffering, than Jesus. And don't you dare try to rush to meet him. He's here, and he has a plan for you, and a place one day in heaven, where all suffering will cease. I did not always know or love Jesus (nor respond well to messages exactly like this). My life still isn't easy. But my hope is eternal, and my faith is total.

Love you, man. Stay safe. Have fun. Stay based. And know that Wednesday is not the end. It's a beginning. And it needs you and your continued involvement.

I lost my daddy to an OD when I was 4. One day he didn't come home and my mom acted like it wasn't a big deal. Then she found another boyfriend.

I didn't learn the truth until I was 8 that my dad passed away. It wasn't until high school that my mom told me what happened.

Trump is the ONLY president in my lifetime I remember talking about the effects of ODs have loved ones and the root causes of the ODs. They have gone down before 2020 because people in states like OH, KY and WV were working again. Trump time after time always brings up the forgotten people. It's makes me cry. But I take tremendous pride in knowing I support our president who wants Americans to be proud of themselves and their country.

The reason I'm still here is, in short, the effect my death would have on others. Love for them makes this shit worth suffering. Make no mistake that you are loved too, and if you arent convinced, then find someone who needs help more than you and look after them like a boss until youre irreplaceable. I felt at first like I was trapped in my own life, unable to even become an hero - but in the end, love won.

If none of that helps, then you're a man with nothing left to lose. That's an asset we sorely need, and your position as such may shortly - literally - save the world.

The world is yours man — you belong here. Believe in yourself. Believe in better days. No need to deny the pain, but don't dwell on it, because sometimes dwelling can turn into quicksand. How to avoid quicksand: Keep going. Don't stop. Going through it is the only way past it. Past it is where you belong. And you'll get there, but that's the destination. Until you get there, it's your journey—or, your mission. Whatever you call it, it's yours to achieve, to conquer. Never give up. All of this—I truly believe it.

Your brother died during the second opium war and it should empower you to stand up and fight with everything you got. This was brought on by the Bush Deepstate during Iraq and Afghanistan when they kept open the opium fields in Afghanistan. It was a direct pipeline to US Doctors who worked for Big Pharma that have away pills like candy creating the epidemic of opioid abuse. This is known throughout the intelligence community as the 2nd opium war. I have lost 15 friends since 2006 to heroin and pills. I watched it all go down and it enrages me yet empowers me to go and to be informed about everything on these evil people who want to rule over us. We need you to stay in the fight and you need to understand that god lay within your heart. You don't need a church you don't need a bible you must just keep your heart, mind, and gut free from the evil clutches that want to drive you away from your soul. Man has an fragile state of mind and it can be conquered when one of those 3 important parts of your body aren't working properly. Try to think of your sufferings as the Divine Gardener working His energies to perfect you spiritually. God even shapes the vines that are bearing fruit so they can be even better.
